Ir may be worth while to make use of the present period of slackness in matters of more serious public importance, to call attention to one of the minor shortcomings in Hongkong, which has long been a subject of to men of war was left as it stood. complaint, and which is easily susceptible of remedy. There seems to be a want of some bour. The former are constantly in requisition, not only by residents, but by visitors, and the regular licensed sampan is, therefore a matter to which some little attention might | expenditure, and should not be so heavy as to reasonably be devoted. At present, these craft | not as a burden on the trade of the Colony. are of the dirtiest and most uncomfortable character conceivable-little better than would be found in any ordinary Chinese town and by no means so good as those at Canton. There rousiderations, and the large number of them who bear the marks of small-pox, are by no means encouraging to those who are compelled to make use of the boats. A piece of red cloth placed upon the sent, is considered, and the question of cleanliness is evidently take into any serious consideration. Unforturately, however, these simple and unsophisticated views do not quite most the ideas of Europeans, who have a prejudice in favour of a certain amount of 'cleanliness,' and still greater prejudice in favour of sanitary precautions. But this matter does not seem somehow to have attracted the attention of ment can easily be effected. There is also a point with regard to the larger Chinese craft, which calls for some notice, and that is, that no boat can leave the limits of the harbour without obtaining a clearance pass from the Harbour-Master's office. Thus, if anyone wishes to take a Hakow boat to go a short distance for a shooting excursion, he is obliged to make his. arrangements before the closing of the Harbour-Master's office, and even if it is or Aberdeen, the same obstruction stands in the way, to say nothing of the fee which has to be paid. This is an amount of obstructiveness which would certainly be the subject of very grave complaint if. it were found in China, and which seems whole, and more serious charge, to accord very little with the superior could be remedied in a way similar to that proposed above with respect to the sampans that is to say, a certain number of boats might be licensed to take people on short somewhat superior class of boat to the means rather of increasing than diminishing the Government revenue in fees, if indeed this point would be worth considering in Its object, apparently; was to suggest that the vessel of which he had spoken as the Osprey was in reality a Calcutta ship, known as the Red Jacket, and to hint that as he was idling have been some to hear of the arrival of a ship wrecked ever, if such a thing had happened. His evidence in chief-the sum of which was not, after all, very great-was supplemented by that of Mr. Richard Goodycar, landlord of the Shipwrights' Arms, West Cowes, and who, as a corporal of the Royal Engineers, was resident at Melbourne in 1853-5. In July, 1854, Mr. Goodyear travelled by the Comet, a little stermtugethat used to ply-up and down Melboarne Day from Sandvidge to Williamstown; and in her course the Comet lay to by a large threemasted schooner, the name of which Mr. Goodor 400 tons, and took of her about seven or eight persons, of whom one was dressed like a landsmun, the rest like railors.

. February, 1854, the good, ship Osprey, Captain lunatio asylums, chargeable to the Holbert rently two men in her, and about two miles to windward. Accordingly the ship was putabout, and the men in the boat, thinking they were to be left to their fate, boisted up a red shirt on an oar. They altered tack, brought the Osprey ap, with the boat on her quarter. There were six men in her, of whom four were lying in the bottom delirious and insensible. There was a bucket balf full of ship's biscuit snaked in salt water, but there was no other food, and not a drop of fresh water. The san was almost vertical, in the sky; the heat was intense; and it was tolerably clear, according to Mr. Luic's judgment, that four of the boat's prow at loast, if not six, were suffering from supstroke. The poor fellows were hauled up by a rope, washed, clad, and led, and one of them, who was not a sailor, was, by Captain Bannett's directions, treated with especial consideration, being put in Mr. Luis's own berth, and most carefully touded by Mr. Inie's own haude, "I notice him moch," said Mr. Luie. "I had to wash him nearly every day during the voyage. He was a small-made man, and not very bony"—here the witness gave a tolerably minutedescription of Roger Tichborne. "He was delirious all the voyage; he was never in his sound mind. I have had sunstroke myself, and it was sunstroke he was suffering from." A curious picture it was that the exsteward of the Osprey drew of the life of this young men on bourd that vessel. For three whole months he lay in Mr. Luie's berth, and had to be washed and looked after like a child Occasionally he would talk to Luie himself in Spanish, or to Captain Bannett in English; and be would vary the monotony of his existence by picking oakum, and whittling a stick. His name, he said, was " Rogers," and he so persistently declined to give any account of himself that Mr. buie put him down as "a runaway bankrupt." Quite sane he never became; and when the wind was at all high he used to get beside himself with terror, and stand in need of

After a three months passage, the Osprey at last three anchor in Hobson's Bay. The gold fever was ut its beight; and the first thing that Mr. Luie did was to run away to Ballarat. That everling he was in a publishouse in the neighbourhood of the docks, and be heard the company talking about the trial, and about the Claimant's statement that he was saved from the wreck of the Bel'a. Now " Mr. Rogers' had, it seems, told Luie all about the Bella and her cargo of coffee, and accordingly Luis pricked up his cars. "I set vitin myself," said he, " dis iss de yong mann who was in my bert on de Osprey. I like to see him moch." And accordingly after such labour and trouble as may be expected to befull a foreign sailor whose object it is "to find the Claimant," Mr. Luie made his way to Bessborough-gardens, and there had an interview with a person whom he had no difficulty in recognising as the very "Mr. Rogers" who was picked up by the Osprey in latitude 18 deg. to 20 deg. Four o'clock approached, and Mr. Luie was still under the microscope, when the Cour neked Mr. Hawkins if he intended to conclude his cross examination that day. "My lord," said Mr. Hawkins, "I cannot, my lord, had no notice of this witness until this morning. No incident of any note occurred to break the course of the proceedings, unless, indeed, it was the obvious irritation with which Mr. Whalloy answered to a subpana duces teoum, calling upon him to produce his notes of an in consequence of which he set out on his memorable trip to the United States. Mr. Whalley had not the notes with him, he ex-

Mr. Henry Crabbe, the next witness, had been gardener to Sir Edward Doughty, had known Roger Tichborne-well, and had no difficulty in identifying the defendant as the same person. ENGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY, PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

IMOR comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them; are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are givent the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration: Chalmers' Vocabularly contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English FIJHE UNDERSIGNED begs to inform the Vermicelli, 30 bags, at $6.80, by Chun-chong and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English HONGKONG, HO NAM, AND CANTON words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese obarac- tout he has shops established at these places in ters. of gesticulations which here I have not room | away. They come not down from the north to give an account of. Suffice it to say, that nor up from the south; and even if they no change of the weather surprises him, and did, I believe they could be won to us by a similar experiment, so that they may know terly swept away, the world had been another movements of the prisoner. form. If it rains either before or after noon, by Joaquin Miller. it is found crept up to the top of its lodging, and there it remains till the weather is settled. If we are to have wind, the year prisoner gallops through its limpid habitation with amazing swiftness, and seldom rests till it begins to blow hard. If a storm of thunder and rain is to succeed, for some days previously it lodges almost continually mer weather, it lies constantly at the bottom, and in snow, as in rainy weather, it pitches it's dwelling upon the very mouth of the phial." Our personal experience of these clerks of the weather" is but limited; so far as it. goes, it generally tends to confirm the foregoing remarks. The following observations, however, of a lady naturalist, to whom we are indebted for our introduction to leeches in their barometrical capacity, and who has herself kept a daily record of their move-out of the water, and discovers very great uncisiness in violent throes and convalsions. In the frost, as in clear sum-ments for more than twelve years, admirably supplement what has been already quoted. 'As a rule, during fine and wet weather, premium charged for insurance; such discount the leeches remain at the bottom of the being deducted at the time of the issue of povessel. When a change is slowly approaching liev. they move upwards, twenty-four hours, or. at times, thirty-six hours, in advance of it. When a storm is rapidly approaching, the leaches become very restless, and rise quickly; while before a thunderstorm they pass entirely out of the water. A tight-fitting wire work cover must be placed over the top, as the leeches soon escape, especially in stormy weather. When the change occurs, they become still at the bottom of the vessel; but if under such dircumstances they rise again or keep above the water, length or violence of storms is indicated. If the leeches rise during a continuance of east wind, wind rather than rain is to be expected. When a storm comes direct from a distance, we shall observe the rapid rising and restlessness alluded to above, but much · shorter notice—from four to six hours—will be given. When heavy rain or high wind is to be expected, the leeches are also restloss, and keep out of the water, but their movements are much less rapid. It is advisable to keep the vessel in a temperature as even as possible. When the temperature falls below 48 degrees the leeches cease to indicate. any change; they become quite torpid, or, in other words, hybernate pro tem. In a small jar'at a temperature above 75: degrees, the excessive heat may cause them to rise; otherwise they would be quiet.

From this description—the more trustworthy as being the result of the observations of many years -our feaders will be able to gather what the various motions of the leeches indicate, should they be induced by this short notice to set up a living barometer. In more than one instance. when in apparently cloudless and settled weather a sudden storm has been indicated by the leeches and prophesied by their owner, the amuzement of those not in the secret has been very amusing. We do not hesitate to say that many disappointments at picnics or excursions would be prevented were these weather wise creatures more generally known and more frequently consulted.

THE CAUSE OF WAR Men fight for freedom of body. There is no such thing. For six thousand yoars men have struggled for a mistake. There is freedom of mind, and a man can have that just as much in a monarchy as in a land even beyond the pale of law. A shoomaker or mender of nets may be as free of mind as a monarch. Give us freedom of mind, or rather let each man emancipate his mind and all the rest will follow. It is not in the power of kings to enslave the mind, or o presidents to emancipate it.
